

A Salute to Our Electric Linemen

MESSAGE FROM MANAGER
JERRY D.
WILLIAMS

As manager of Lamar Electric Cooperative, I work with many talented and hard-working people every day. But one group of employees in particular might best symbolize the rural electric cooperative—and that is our linemen.

When needed, linemen answer the call. Whether it's blazing heat, freezing cold or pouring rain, they head out to restore electric service after it's knocked out. If a calamity such as a severe storm causes system-wide outages, it is the linemen who leave their homes and families to toil for hours or days—whatever it takes—to get the lights back on.

Line workers have a potentially fatal job—in fact, it's rated as one of the most dangerous in the United States. That's why safety comes first, and we insist on extensive training for our linemen.

That training and safety-first culture is put on full display at the Texas Lineman's Rodeo, which you can read about in this issue of Texas Co-op Power. This year's rodeo, to take place near Seguin on July 16, is not only a showcase of lineman skills, but it's also a place where safe practices are paramount.

Throughout the year, our statewide organization, Texas Electric Cooperatives (TEC) conducts numerous educational schools for our linemen. Even our most experienced linemen have learned safer and more efficient ways to do their jobs. TEC uses state-of-the-art training fields and equipment.

Each year, TEC conducts an intense weeklong school concerning how to handle high-voltage electric wires. It is an awesome feeling to be holding a large wire in your gloved hand while standing in a fiberglass bucket swaying in the wind 40 feet in the air, knowing there are 14,400 volts going through the wire. One wrong decision spells immediate death by electrocution or an immense fireball that melts flesh instantly. I am very proud that one of our experienced linemen, Will Armstrong, was selected this year to be one of the instructors for this important school.

Every employee at Lamar Electric attends some type of training school every year. Linemen generally attend more than one. We gladly pay our linemen to attend these training opportunities because it helps keep them alive and uninjured. This training also saves money for our members through lower insurance rates. There has not been a lost-time accident of any sort at Lamar Electric since July 28, 2008, and we want to keep it that way.

When they're not training or responding to an outage, our linemen are on the job maintaining the infrastructure and building new lines to ensure reliable delivery of your power.

Unfortunately, many of our most experienced linemen are nearing retirement age, and there are not enough trained replacements out there to fill their boots.

This presents an excellent opportunity for young people who are looking for a challenging and well-paying career that will allow them to stay in their home communities. Lineman training programs are offered at several colleges in Texas. For more information on the programs, go to www.texas-ec.org and click on Loss Control Program under Products and Services.

The work is challenging, but linemen develop a camaraderie and earn satisfaction through their profession. And, at the end of the day, linemen know their work directly affects the thousands of members who depend on electricity in their daily lives.

Please join me in saluting our hard-working linemen and thanking them for a job well done.

Annual Meeting Highlights

The Lamar Electric Co-op annual membership meeting was held April 9 at Love Civic Center in Paris.

Three directors were re-elected. In District 1, Mike Williams, running uncontested, received 117 votes. In District 8, James Dunn and Derrell London ran against incumbent James Sam Cooper. Cooper won with 148 votes to London's 48 and Dunn's 25. In District 9, Lyle Yoder ran uncontested and earned 188 votes.

The names of six high school seniors were drawn out of a hopper for $1,000 scholarships. There were 66 entries. The $1,000 scholarship can be used at any accredited university, college or junior college of their choice.

Money for these scholarships comes from unclaimed deposits and unclaimed refunds from our members. Each member can still file a claim with the State of Texas for unclaimed checks, but the law allows Lamar Electric to use a portion of these funds for scholarships.

The winners were: GARRETT BURT, home-schooled, son of Paul and Teresa Burt of Lake Creek; LANEY JACKSON, Prairiland High School, daughter of Geron and Glenna Jackson of Pattonville; JORDAN MALLICOTE, Honey Grove High School, son of Charles and Laurie Mallicote of Tigertown; HALEY OTTMO, North Lamar High School, daughter of Cecil and Brenda Ottmo of Caviness; DREW PARKER, Cooper High School, son of Greg and Pam Toon of Cooper; and MOLLY PYLANT, Prairiland High School, daughter of Jamie and Karen Pittman of Blossom.

The names of all members present at the meeting were placed in the hopper for prize drawings. Prizes were given to 38 members. The grand prizewinner of a 32-inch LCD HDTV was Timothy Crawford of Bagwell.
